REPORTS FROM BOARD LIAISONS

Faculty Association

Dr. Arjo expressed appreciation for the highly professional and transparent budget preparation process. Dr. Arjo echoed the concerns expressed by Trustees Lawson and Cross in regard to reducing the mill levy. In regard to the ongoing math placement cut scores discussion, Dr. Arjo stated that the math faculty had not come to the Faculty Association, so he is not speaking on their behalf, but he knows that his math faculty have good intentions in regard to their position, even though it is in opposition to the administration’s position, and he urges everyone to not overlook that. The next FA meeting will be Thursday, April 19th, which will be the closing period for nominating officers for next year. Dr. Arjo stated that he is not sure what the slate will look like yet, but knows that his name will not be attached to the position of President. Tradition holds that he will turn over the podium at the next meeting, so he took a moment to look back at his presidency, and express that he truly believes JCCC has a committed, talented, strong faculty and it has been his privilege to represent them to the administration. Trustees and Dr. Sopcich offered heartfelt appreciation for Dr. Arjo’s fairness, advocacy, commitment and professionalism, as well as his sense of humor and eloquence during his tenure as Faculty Association President.

Johnson County Research Triangle

Trustee Lindstrom stated that in contrast to Mr. Carter’s report of the sales tax revenue being down for the state, Johnson County has experienced sales tax revenue increases this year. He also noted that assessment for commercial and residential in Johnson County represents more than 1/3 of the total assessment for the whole state. The next meeting will be on May 7, 2018 at the KU Edwards Campus.
